Unit – II

4. a) Read the following passage and answer the questions:

As ISRO sends Space mission to the Moon, these people already own plots there

Of late, the Moon has turned out to be the most sought-after destination. First to head there was Chandrayaan-3, followed by Russia's Luna-25 and there are four more lunar missions lined up for 2023. This interest in exploring the Moon is also prevalent among the public and it dates back to almost two decades ago for Hyderabad-based numerologist Raajeevv, who in 2003 decided to invest in a plot of land on the Moon.

Mr. Raajeevv purchased a five-acre plot from New York-based Lunar Republic Society for ₹7,000 ($1.40) and he has been issued a certificate-registered claim and deed for the lunar property. Lunar Republic Society is an international advocacy group which claims to be working towards privatization, exploration, settlement and development of the Moon.

About 20 years ago, when I was surfing the internet, an ad popped up stating that one can buy a plot of land on the Moon, I was initially skeptical and after some research, I decided to buy five acres," said Mr. Raajeevv. "What convinced me to buy the land was that it was for the benefit of mankind. Probably I may not go in my lifetime but definitely over 50 or 100 years future generations might be able to realize this dream of living on the Moon," Mr. Raajeevv added.

The launch of Moon missions has aroused more interest among a few like Lalit Mohata who works in an IT company in International Tech Park Bengaluru (ITPB) in Whitefield. Mr. Mohata in 2006 spent ₹3,000 to buy a two-acre plot on the Moon which he claims is a long-term future investment. "I may not get to live on the Moon, but lunar explorations give hope that our future generations might get to live there.

The missions are launched to explore the possibilities of water, energy etc. I was a little disappointed when the Chandrayaan-2 failed in 2019, but I am hopeful that the Chandrayaan-3 will become a success," said
